Brunel Shipping has appointed James Philpott as Project Director for Brunel Project Cargo. James will be responsible for managing and overseeing specialised logistics, heavy lift movements, out of gauge shipments and multiple Projects worldwide within the core industries.

He joins us following over 18 years within the industry, having held senior management roles for leading Global forwarders, such as DHL Industrial Projects and FH Bertling overseeing core sectors.

James Philpott
Project Director
Brunel Project Cargo

Responsibility for multi-million dollar contracts, logistics planning of many high profile projects, along with travelling worldwide overseeing & managing contracts, has gained James an invaluable and vast knowledge of the Oil & Gas Industry, Power and Industrial Plants and Shipping and Global Logistics.

James is looking forward to drawing on his extensive experience and skills to ensure that the varying needs of our existing and new clients are met, being at the forefront of best practice within the industry and playing a key role in the growth of the business.

Mike White Group Operations Director added- We welcome James to Brunel Project Cargo - this is a key appointment for Brunel to further cement our position as one of the leading Multi Modal Freight forwarders in the UK. With the successful growth of our Brunel Airfreight, Brunel Shipping and Brunel European divisions we firmly believe that Brunel can continue to give valuable and successful freight solutions to our clients worldwide.
